ABSTRACT

One of the main foundations of the large-scale reforms carried out in our republic in recent years is to increase the effectiveness of spiritual and educational work, which aims to ensure that our population, especially the fourth generation, will become mature and well-rounded people in all respects. Of course, educational institutions, along with all other fields, are of special importance in making the people of today, who are the foundation of our future, well-educated, highly professional, and intellectually capable. Also, in the conditions of today's globalization, it is necessary to free them from any ideological threats, to form ideological immunity in their thinking based on the principle of "opinion against thought, idea against idea, enlightenment against ignorance", and to reach the level where they can freely express their opinion on the events that have happened, and if necessary, analyze them. After all, as our country's president Sh.M. Mirziyoyev stated in his speech at the solemn ceremony dedicated to the 30th anniversary of the adoption of the Constitution of the Republic of Uzbekistan, "We consider it our first priority to improve the activities of all links of the education and training system based on the requirements of today's times. When talking about the upbringing of the young generation, I would very much like that each of us, especially our sons who have just come into life, follow these thoughts of our grandfather Abdurauf Fitrat. Here is what our great ancestors said: "It is up to the people to move towards a specific goal, to become statesmen, to be happy and gain respect, to be worldly, or to be weak and humiliated, to bear the burden of misfortune, to be neglected, to be subordinated to others, and to be slaves and captives. it depends on the education received from their parents in childhood."

Introduction

In fact, the culture, intelligence, behavior, and characteristics of the children in the educational institutions are an expression of the upbringing they received in the family. The educational system helps to improve these qualities. The main goal of us professors and teachers should be to expand the scope of activities that educate our children in the spirit of respecting the elders, respecting the memory of ancestors, and honoring the elderly while improving spiritual and educational work.

Speech is one of the signs of mutual respect among the team of a higher education institution. Don't forget that speech should be meaningful, burro, grain - grain, impressive. Avoid using slang words in speech. Preventing employees from sometimes taking slang words as insults. Emphasizing important points and using gestures instead.

Speaking too loudly gives the audience the impression that you are passing judgment. Too low a voice reduces receptivity and creates counter-questions. Talking too long and rambling gives the impression that you are wasting time. Speaking too quickly is considered disrespectful to the audience. In order to respect the honor and value of the members of the team and to preserve the spiritual heritage of our nation, it is strictly forbidden for members of the team to disrespect each other, use obscene words, and address each other as "You" in the higher educational institution. The team members of the higher education institution are obliged to treat the speakers with respect at various events (meetings, solemn meetings, practical meetings, holidays) and observe domestic peace. If necessary, it is possible to leave the hall during the interruption that occurs before one speaker finishes his speech and another begins. Team members should walk on the right side of the road on the territory of the higher education institution. When meeting each other, it is recommended that students greet each other first, teachers and staff, men and women, and adults first. An exception to this is handshakes, which can only be answered after the older person shakes hands first. It is forbidden to conduct activities that disrupt training and work, as well as the peace of team members (unintended use of radio, television, tape recorder and other sound amplification devices).

Since students are an important link in the community of a higher education institution, their interaction is important. The principles of a single team, mutual respect and attention, friendship, solidarity, honesty and justice should be followed in the relations of students.

In short, after gaining independence, every country tries to restore its national historical foundations, the rich spiritual and moral heritage left by its ancestors to the generations, and to further develop them. At the same time, he should determine his strategic development path, realize his identity on the basis of the freedom and liberty that his ancestors dreamed of for centuries, and find a strong place in the world. Protecting the hearts and minds of the young generation, educating them in the spirit of national and universal values, and making them mature people who can express their independent opinion on the events happening around them, with a deep understanding of the meaning and root causes of the political processes taking place in the world, are among the urgent tasks.
