INTRODUCTION

The Shanghai Cooperation Organization (SCO) is an organization of regional security and economic cooperation. The highest body of the Shanghai Cooperation Organization is the Council of Heads of State. The organization began its work in 1996 with bilateral cooperation between Russia and China. Uzbekistan, China, India, Pakistan, Iran and Mongolia are the observer states of the Shanghai Cooperation Organization.

In addition, the Shanghai Cooperation Organization is an organization that encourages member countries to cooperate through security. In addition, economic cooperation will include the development of transport infrastructure, development of natural and mineral resources, efficient use of hydropower resources, environmental and other issues.

At the same time, the Regional Anti-Terrorist Organization of the Shanghai Cooperation Organization is located in Tashkent and has been operating since January 1, 2004. functions such as prevention are loaded.

Another important decision in this regard was the Protocol on the conduct of military exercises of the SCO member states (ZRU-634, 30.06.2020) (Bishkek, April 29, 2019) for ratification.

Analyzing the law, we can draw the following conclusions:

- Training of military personnel
- Further deepening of mutually beneficial, long-term cooperation in the field of military technology between the member states of the Shanghai Cooperation Organization.

- Ensuring military security of the parties.
- -Strengthening the military capabilities of our Armed Forces.
- Bring military practical training between the two countries to a qualitatively new level.

"These include military-technical cooperation in the defense industry."

Today, the issue of uniting the forces of the international community is at the forefront of the fight against attempts to involve young people in terrorism, separatism and extremist groups. The countries of the Shanghai Cooperation Organization are aware of the need for concerted, urgent measures to combat the spread of radical and destructive ideas among young people. Member countries are committed to working together. In particular, this is reflected in the Action Plan for the implementation of the Joint Appeal to Youth. It aims to develop a well-rounded personality, the ability to resist destructive forces, attract young people to modern knowledge, strengthen inter-ethnic tolerance, to instill a sense of patriotism and solidarity. The program aims to involve young people in entrepreneurial activities and innovative projects, exchange scientific and technological experience and intensify joint research, establish cooperation between youth organizations to jointly combat international terrorism, separatism and extremism. promotes initiatives.

The statement of the President of the Republic of Uzbekistan Shavkat Mirziyoyev that the Youth Council of the Shanghai Cooperation Organization can be the main driving force behind this program is of practical importance. He wanted Uzbekistan to be one of the most active participants in organizing his work.

Clearly, all these ideas will motivate the youth of the Shanghai Cooperation Organization to take an active part in society, to mobilize their opportunities and potential for personal development, growth, development of their country, and strengthening international dialogue.

International political and analytical circles have widely approved Uzbekistan's initiatives to adopt the UN General Assembly's Special Revolution for Enlightenment and Religious Tolerance and the Joint Address of the SCO Heads of State. special attention should be paid. Their support from the Shanghai Cooperation Organization (SCO) means that member states are trying to "speak with one voice" on strengthening the organization's cohesion, increasing its influence on the world stage, and on current regional and international issues.

In particular, as a result of the above state laws and the initiative of the President of the Republic of Uzbekistan Shavkat Miromonovich Mirziyoyev to address the youth, the University of Public Security of the Republic of Uzbekistan is also working on this issue.

Taking advantage of the conditions created by President Shavkat Miromonovich Mirziyoyev, the young cadets of the university are gaining in-depth knowledge and skills in foreign languages, modern computer technology, as well as the fight against religious extremism.

In today's fast-paced world, knowing foreign languages is an important issue for every young person.

At the university, too, the demand and enthusiasm of students for learning foreign languages are very high. In particular, the practical work carried out in cooperation with the university and the Embassy of the People's Republic of China is bearing fruit today. As a result of the efforts of the Head of the University and Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the People's Republic of China to the Republic of Uzbekistan Ms. Jiang Yan, from 2018 the cadets will be taught by Chinese teachers of the embassy and university professors of the Chinese language. is being taught.

In conclusion, the training of young personnel in the military field of cooperation between the member states of the Shanghai Cooperation Organization is now one of the political issues of each state. In recent years, our country has taken a number of important initiatives on this issue.

In particular, several events with young people have been successfully held in our country under the "One Place, One Way" program. Every year, the Republican Contest "Chinese Bridge" is held to support young people who are interested in science. In addition, Confucius Institutes have been established in Tashkent and Samarkand regions, and qualified Chinese specialists provide in-depth knowledge to students.

In order to strengthen the partnership between the two countries in the military field, annual field exercises are held. A number of innovations in the field of cooperation, in particular, the establishment of special delegations between the two countries to exchange skills and experience, share knowledge and experience in the field of military education and study the knowledge acquired in practice in their countries in accordance with standards.

At the heart of all such large-scale reforms, initiatives and cooperation is the strengthening of cordial relations between the two countries. Of course, raising the level of knowledge of young professionals, creating favorable conditions for them to learn, solving existing problems, and most importantly, young professionals with high potential, intellectual, open-minded, able to easily get out of any problem situation, training of talented and able to think creatively and critically, to have an active position in society.
